

Dear Mrs. Karen Foster,

I have learned some of the most simple, yet important values in your course when you came to visit our business class. I think that if each and every student in high school was able to listen to a speech like the one you presented to my class, more than once, then they would not only stay motivated to do good things for themselves and others, and also learn self values and more about themselves. It should be mandatory for a person to come into a high school environment and present a speech much like yours at least twice a year. I think that it would improve the education system allot more.

Some of the things that you said were simple and very powerful, like the quote on the paper, "Know yourself, and then create yourself". To some students that small quote may do allot more then the average person realizes. I hope that all of the students you speak to enjoy it as much as I did, some of my friends also said that they enjoyed your course.

So those are the most interesting points that I found about your course, and I'm sure many other students will share the same interests. My e-mail again is the mc1988@hotmail.com

I hope students like my E-mail, I am happy to write them, take care Karen
